

MEMBERSHIP

Membership in the Library Instruction Round Table is open to any ALA Member. Membership offers the perfect opportunity to get involved in library instruction issues at the national level, whether you work in an academic, special, public, or school library setting. LIRT membership is also a great way to meet others interested in instruction or contribute to the work of LIRT as a committee volunteer.

• • •

HOW M

- Attend a BITES with LIRT lunch at Midwinter or Annual and learn more about our organization.
 - Participate in the Discussion Forum at Midwinter hosted by LIRT.
 - Attend the LIRT Annual Conference program.
 - Drop by the LIRT Membership Fair: LIRT 101, prior to the Annual Conference program.
 - Visit the LIRT booth in the Exhibit Hall at Annual Conference.
 - Attend an All-Committee Meeting at Midwinter or Annual to learn more about specific committees or to hear the latest buzz.
 - Volunteer for a committee appointment.
-
- Share information, news and discussion in the LIRT Group on ALA Connect.
 - Subscribe to LIRT-L to hear all of the latest news and information.
 - Take a look at LIRT's publications and resources, including Teaching Tips, the Top 20 Instruction Articles, and LIRT News, the organization's newsletter. All available on our website: www.ala.org/ala/lirt.

American Library Association

1977with the purpose of advocating library instruction and information literacy as part of lifelong learning. LIRT is an inclusive, energetic and diverse organization that supports librarians engaged in library instruction and information literacy in all types of libraries.

awareness of the need for library instruction and information literacy to assist library practitioners in the development, improvement, and promotion of library instruction and information literacy by creating appealing programming for librarians from all types of libraries. We encourage library schools to include education for library instruction and information literacy in their curricula. rough involvement in LIRT we offer members the opportunity to network with colleagues interested in library instruction issues as well as a platform to encourage the development of AIA policy promoting library instruction and information literacy.