Position statement

USBBY is an organization that is a vital and powerful advocate for books and youth. It is charge is to carry on the works begun by Jella Lepman in war-torn Germany after World War II. Her passionate voice reverberates across many different cultures and nations that seek to bring enlightenment and literacy to all our children.

I attended my first USBBY conference in Callaway Gardens in 1995 which began my bridge to understanding the world of international books made available by the tireless efforts of the IBBY community. Attending and participating in the USBBY and IBBY conferences has expanded my horizons and challenge perceptions regarding international culture and children's books.

USBBY-IBBY has been an inspiring global commitment to promote children's and young adult literature to achieve a reading culture of tolerance and understanding the gift of diversity.
